Embroidery

Embroidery is the process of stitching a logo, text or design onto a textile.Embroidery is widely used in branding clothing and on uniforms to create a professional, durable and long-lasting look. A perfect option for when you want to add extra personalization such as names.

A logo can be digitized, which takes a high-resolution image and determines the number of stitches and colors required, before applying it to the garment.

Patches

Patches are the most cost effective, and can be reused elsewhere. There are embroidered or stitched separately and then added to a garment. Since ESD products have a suggested maximum of washes they can handle, this is a great option for when you just want a logo added to apparel.
